COUNTRY HOME IS CONSUMED BY FIRE

Large Residence on John Rapp Farm At Rockford Destroyed by Fire Sunday Morning.

LOSS ESTIMATED AT $6,000

House Guests Succeed in Removing Household Contents Before Building Collapsed.

Following one of the most elaborate social functions of the season, the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. John Rapp, at Rockford, was completely destroyed by fire Sunday morning causing a damage estimated at $6,000. The origin of the fire is thought to have been a defective flue. The flames had gained a good headway before being discovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Rapp and Miss Anna Massman had entertained Saturday evening with a dance and luncheon complimentary to Mrs. Margaret Wood, Miss Massman's guest. Some of the guests remained over night at the Rapp home and it was one of them that first discovered the fire, having detected smoke and upon investigation found the rear of the house in flames. He immediately called Mr. and Mrs. Rapp and the house guests from their slumber and work was started to remove the household contents. With the assistance of several neighbors Mr. Rapp and his guests succeeded in saving practically all of the household contents.

The Rapp home was one of the most spacious in the county. Several thousand dollars was expended last spring in remodeling the house and converting it into one of the most modern country homes in this vicinity. The loss is estimated at $5,000 which was only partially covered by insurance, Mr. Rapp having carried $2,000 on the dwelling.

It is possible that the fire had been smoldering for several hours before breaking out in flames. Members of the house party noticed that the house was exceptionally warm but believed it to be due to the furnace having been fired by Mr. Rapp before retiring. The house guests included Miss Massman, the honor guest Mrs. Wood, Misses Mary Gillespie and Adelaide Gasaway, S. A. Rogers, O. H. Holder and Riley Whitman. All worked hard in an effort to save the household contents and it was due to them that the many valuables were saved.

Mr. Rapp stated yesterday that he expected to rebuild as soon as possible and the ruins will be replaced with another modern country home.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Martin, Mrs. Lynne Dobbins, Misses Josephine Fetting, Elsie Reynolds, Christine Meyer, Stella Laupus, Mary Gillespie, Adelaide Gasaway, S. A. Rogers, Ed Brown, John Keegler, Dr. C. E. Gillespie, Riley Whitman, Robert White, W. G. Masters, Carlyle Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Rapp, Miss Massman and the honor guest.

Oakley M. Allen Will Become Associated With W. F. Bush in Shoe Business.

A deal was completed this morning whereby Oakley M. Allen has disposed of his barber shop on South Chestnut street to Edward L. Newkirk who for several months has been working at the New Lynn barber shop. The Allen shop enjoyed one of the largest patronages in the city and Mr. Newkirk's friends predict a fine business for him in his new location.

Mr. Allen who has been engaged in the barber business for several years is retiring from the barber business to become associated with W. F. Bush in the shoe business. He has a large circle of friends who predict for him a very successful career in his new undertaking. The change in ownership of the barber shop became effective at noon today.

BAR SIGNS MUST NOW BE REMOVED

Mayor Burkart Calls Attention to Section of New Prohibition Law Effective Saturday.

ORBISON ASKS COOPERATION

Federal Prohibition Director for Indiana Seeks Assistance in Enforcing Measure.

Bar signs which were formerly used to advertise the location of saloons are prohibited by the new nationwide prohibition law which became effective Monday. The attention of C. W. Burkart, city mayor, has been called to this section of the enforcing act of the eighteenth amendment and will grant the owners of several signs which are still exhibited reasonable time to remove them before instituting prosecution. It is not generally known that such signs are prohibited under the new law and doubtless they are permitted to remain because of the negligence of the owners in removing them. Several such signs are still hanging in front of places which were former saloons.

That the officials of Indiana cities will be asked to co-operate with the government in enforcing the prohibition law is indicated by a communication from the federal prohibition director.

DISTILLER HAS 16 BARRELS ON HANDS

Railroad Company Refused to Transfer Whiskey to Louisville Warehouse.

Although the nation is dry a Lawrenceburg distiller has sixteen barrels of whiskey on hands which are causing him considerable worry as to how he can legally dispose of same. The owner of the whiskey is said to have waited until the last day before the nation wide prohibition became effective and then made application to the Baltimore & Ohio agent at that place to have the barrels transferred to Louisville.

Knowing that it would be almost impossible to guarantee delivery to the place where the liquor was consigned before the law became effective, the agent consulted division officials at this place and owing to the shortness of time for making the delivery was instructed not to accept it. Whether or not the whiskey has been disposed of as yet is not known here.

By United Press
New York, January 19—More than $3,000,000 worth of whiskey and other liquor has been confiscated by the internal revenue offices here since the eighteenth amendment went into effect Saturday. Twice as much liquor was sent to the ship as she could carry and the surplus valued at $1,500,000 fell into government hands.

INCOME BLANKS TO ARRIVE THIS WEEK

B. W. Noell, District Internal Revenue Collector, Preparing for Their Distribution.

MUST BE FILED BY MARCH 15

Persons Required to Pay Tax on Income Comes Anxious to Dispose of The Statement.

Income tax report blanks for individuals will be received here about January 22, according to B. W. Noell, deputy district revenue collector, whose office is at the postoffice. Mr. Noell stated that he had received information from the department that the blanks for individual returns would probably be received before next Thursday so they could be distributed after that time. Many people who are required to make returns under the income tax law are anxious to get a copy of the form so that they will have ample time to answer all the questions before March 15 when the time for filing the statements expires.

The burden of fulfilling this obligation is laid by law squarely on the shoulders of those who are American citizens or residents. Every person must determine for himself whether his net income for 1919, figured according to the revenue law, was sufficient in amount to require a return.

It is single, a return is required if his net income for 1919 was $1,000 or over. A widow or widower is classed as a single person. A man or

AMERICAN REPUBLICS MUST BE WORLD MODELS

President Wilson So Writes to Second Pan-American Financial Conference.

By United Press

Washington, January 19—American republics must set up as models for the world in development of high political and social ideals, and abandon all selfish purposes, President Wilson today told delegates to the second Pan-American financial conference in a personal letter of welcome which was read at the opening session.

"I rejoice with you that in these troubled times of world reconstruction, the republics of the American continent should seek no selfish purpose, but should be guided by a desire to serve one another and to serve the world to the utmost of their capacity," the President wrote. "The great privileges that have been showered upon us, both by reason of our geographical position and because of high political and social ideals that have determined the national development of all American republics," the President said, "carry with them obligations the fulfillment of which must be regarded as a real privilege by every true American."

PRESENT WEEK MAY BRING DECISION

Results of Bi-Partisan Treaty Conferences Now in Progress to Be Known Soon.

DEMOCRATS MAY STAND PAT

Failure of Agreements Would Also Show Determination to the Lodge Group.

By United Press

Washington, January 19.—The present week is expected to show conclusively whether a compromise can be arranged on the peace treaty through the medium of bi-partisan conference now going on. If this method fails other compromise attempts will doubtless be made, but failure of the present effort would be exceedingly discouraging, senators said today.

The chief reason so much depends on the bi-partisan plan is that should the present discussion demonstrate to Senator Lodge that the Democrats will not yield to Article 10, the Monroe Doctrine and other major points in dispute, it is believed he will hesitate to have anything to do with any other proposals for bringing together the disagreeing groups.

There is a growing feeling in the senate that the discussion now going on will result during the week in an agreement to disagree which will once again demonstrate that the Democrats are standing firmly against any repudiation of American obligations under the League of Nations and that the Lodge groups of Republicans are just as firm for the Lodge reservations.

VESSELS HURRY TO AID OF TRANSPORT

Powhatan With Passenger List of 271 Disabled by Leaks 500 Miles From New York.

BOILER ROOM IS FLOODED

Captain Randall Sends Message That Ship is Not in Immediate Danger.

By United Press

New York Jan. 19—The American transport Powhatan, disabled by leaks which have flooded her fire room, was in distress about 500 miles east of New York early today.

Wireless reports intercepted at the navy yards here this afternoon said the White Star Liner Cedric was standing by the disabled transport. The Cedric is awaiting an opportunity to effect transfer of the Powhatan 271 passengers, the latest messages said. The British steamer Bardie, now is standing by the disabled vessel, the messages said, and will tow her to the nearest port.

The Powhatan is not in as dangerous position as was at first believed. Passengers on the Powhatan were experiencing inconvenience from lack of heat, the message said. Water in the vessel's hold have extinguished the fires. It was hoped the passengers may be transferred by night.

The latest wireless from her commander, Capt. Randall, reported that she was in no immediate danger and that British tugs sent out from Halifax would tow her to that port. The White Star Liner Cedric was standing by to transfer the 271 military and civilian passengers as soon as the heavy seas abated.

The first message from the Powhatan said:

"Ship leaking in fire room. Fire room flooded. Steam not sufficient to operate pumps. Assistance requested. Northeast gale blowing."

Later another message announced the arrival of the Cedric and asked for tugs from Halifax. Still later Capt. Randall reported the vessel in no immediate danger.

Col. Mitchell, in charge of the army transport service here, said that three coast guard cutters from the Boston district, two destroyers from Newport and two army transports, the Northern Pacific and the Martha Washington, had been ordered to the Powhatan's assistance.

The two transports are homeward bound from Europe with the last of the American expeditionary force aboard.

The Powhatan's passenger list includes 183 military, 84 war department, two navy department and two commerce department passengers. Included among these are 75 former service men who were enroute to France to begin the work of removing American soldier dead to this country. They are in charge of Herbert S. Foreman, former artillery officer of the Rainbow division.

The Powhatan formerly was the German liner Hamburg. She was used by the former kaiser in his visit to England in 1906 and carried Theo. Roosevelt and his party to Europe in 1909.

Washington, Jan. 19—Leading financiers of Latin-American countries and the United States gathered here today for a five-day conference to discuss and adopt means to stimulate financial and trade relations between North and South America.

Twenty Latin-American countries were represented by delegations composed of ministers of finance, bankers, jurists, merchants and shipowners. Secretary of the Treasury Glass officially represented the United States. The conference is the second Pan-American Financial Conference, which opened today and lasts until Friday.

Addresses of welcome by Vice-President Marshall, Secretary of State Lansing, and John Barrett, director-general of the Pan-American Union, featured today's opening session. Following the response by Latin-Americans, the conference proceeded to the organization of group committees, each Latin-American delegation being turned over to group committees, composed of America's leading millionaire bankers, exporters and manufacturers.

The conference is expected to discuss many important problems, affecting business relations between the United States and Latin-America. Subjects to be considered include international finance, exchange rates, investment opportunities, improved facilities for transportation and communication, and removal of obstacles in the way of trade.

Twenty Latin-American republics were represented at the opening of the conference. The eight cabinet ministers attending were: Dr. Domingo Salaberry of Argentina; Pomponio Guzman of Colombia; Dr. Luis Felipe Boria of Ecuador; M. Fleury Fiquiere of Haiti; Dr. Ensenio Ayala of Paraguay; Fernando C. Fuchs of Peru; Jose Esperanza Suay of Salvador; and Dr. Ricardo of Uruguay.

Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation; Henry Ford, and Edward S. Huxley, president of the United States Rubber Export Company, will act as hosts to the Latin-Americans. Each committee has from ten to fifteen American business men on it, and will place themselves at the disposal of the visitors.

Following the end of the conference each delegation is to be taken on separate tours of the United States. Their itineraries will include visits to the coal and iron fields, cotton growing sections, railroad centers, the grain belt and steel plants.

Indigestion

Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 9 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach.

There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, bloating after eating, food repeating, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are nevertheless, traceable to an acid stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victims in miserable health year after year.

The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid-stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this.

One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with intestinal indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. The discovery of an error in the surveying of the land near Butlerville to be acquired by the state for a farm colony for the feeble minded, whereby the state would lose title to about fifty acres, has resulted in a postponement of the closing of the deal. A Widow's Dilemma.

A widow in a nearby city is in imminent danger of a Klondike rush of would-be second husbands. She writes to the Federal authorities to say that her late husband left a cellar stocked with liquors. She can not give the stuff away; she is not permitted to sell it; she has no personal use for it. So long as the booze is there the fluttered lady is in imminent danger of being burglarized or re-married out of hand. There are many widowers to whom this situation would not be in the nature of a predicament. With the widow, however, it is different. The lady's name is withheld at her own urgent demand, but if she desires to become the one and only human matrimonial bureau, she needs only to pass the word.—Vincennes Capital.

FARMERS REDUCE H. C. L. BY CURING PORK AT HOME

A general return to the old-fashioned practice of curing pork at home is suggested as a means by which farmers may help take the high out of the high cost of living, by men in the animal husbandry department at Purdue University. This practice is not followed as widely in Indiana as it was a few years ago. Two general methods are employed in curing hams, shoulders and bacon, namely by the brine or dry methods. A recipe for each way is recommended by the animal husbandry men.

In using the brine method, eight pounds of salt, two pounds of brown sugar and two ounces of saltpeter should be dissolved in four gallons of hot water for each 100 pounds of meat to be treated. After the meat has been cooled, salt should be rubbed over each piece, a little sprinkled in the bottom of the container and the meat packed in closely with the heavy pieces at the bottom. After the contents of the container have been weighted down, the cooled brine may be poured in until the meat is well-covered. After five or six days the meat should be repacked so that which was originally on the bottom of the container is at the top and the same brine poured over it. After another five or six days it should be repacked in the original order. Thin sides and other similar pieces cure in from 12 to 14 days while heavier pieces should remain in the brine about two days for each pound of weight. They should then be drained and smoked.

A good dry cure is to use four to five pounds of salt, one to two pounds of sugar six to seven ounces of black pepper, one ounce of cayenne pepper and two ounces of saltpeter for each 100 pounds of meat. These ingredients should be well-mixed and rubbed thoroughly on the meat after the animal heat has left it. The meat should be left on clean tables or boxes that afford drainage and after five or six days another application of the curing mixture should be made together with a third application after a similar period. Thin sides are cured in 12 days to two weeks while heavier pieces will require about two days for each pound of weight. Before the meat is smoked, the excess cure should be brushed off and the meat soaked for half an hour in lukewarm water.

PROGRAM FOR IMPROVING DAIRY INDUSTRY ADOPTED

A campaign for pure-bred sires, the continuation of the testing associations, stabilization of the city milk supply and the control of dairy cattle diseases were among the important items in the program outlined for the improvement of the dairy industry during the coming year by the dairy extension men of Purdue University at a recent conference.

For some time past, farmers have begun to realize that one of the most important factors in the economic production of any kind of cattle was the use of a pure bred sire and according to the program outlined, a greater effort is to be put forth to replace the scrub sires with well-bred animals. Campaigns will be conducted in all the counties and wherever possible, the farmers will be encouraged to purchase pure-bred animals.

Much benefit has been derived from the cow testing association work in the past and it is the plan of the extension dairymen to continue the work and make it more helpful than ever before. The cooperative purchase of feed, the testing of the various herds for tuberculosis and better feeding and management methods are some of the things that are to be encouraged through the associations.

The increased use of milk as a food and its importance in the average diet has led to the recommendation that milk committees or commissions and dairy councils be organized to attend to the details of marketing milk. Evansville and Fort Wayne now have these kinds of

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 10c and 25c.

commissions and their success has made it seem advisable that similar ones be formed in other cities.

The extension workers have said that the breeders and owners of herds can do much to control the outbreak of contagious diseases in their herds by placing them under Federal and state supervision. Publicity will be given to the outbreak of these diseases in order that they may be checked before they have done serious damage.

MASH-FED WITH PROTEIN MAKES HENS LAY BETTER

Extension poultrymen of Purdue University are responsible for the statement that feeding mash with animal protein will give a decided increase in the egg production of the average farm poultry flock. Corn, wheat and oats are not sufficient for maximum egg production, but must be supplemented with tankage, meat scraps, or skim milk.

Good results have been obtained by many practical Indiana farmers by feeding a mash consisting of 50 pounds of wheat bran, 50 pounds of wheat middlings and 30 pounds of a good grade of feeding tankage. A self-feeder containing the mash should be before the fowls throughout the year. This will insure a supply of nutrients necessary for heavy egg laying and in addition will help the hens molt more quickly and return to laying sooner.

If available, skim-milk as a drink can be fed at the rate of three gallons per day for 100 hens. If this is fed, the tankage may be omitted from the mash.

PUTNAM BREEDERS VACCINATE HOGS TO CONTROL CHOLERA

As a result of getting one farmer in Putnam county to vaccinate his hogs for cholera, enthusiasm in the practice has been started in that community and many farmers in a cholera infected area are vaccinating their animals to safeguard against the disease, according to a report of the county agricultural agent. Cholera obtained a start in Putnam county recently and was proving serious because of the prejudice against vaccinating. Now, however, since one farmer was persuaded to try out the practice and the results of it have been shown to his neighbors, the stock raisers in that community hope to wipe out the disease by vaccination and other methods of sanitation.

JENNINGS COUNTY HAS NEW ASSOCIATION FOR SHIPPING

The need for a livestock shippers organization in Jennings county has caused the farmers to appoint a committee to have the situation examined and as a result a survey and canvass of the conditions have been made. Many of the large breeders of the county have been interviewed and a temporary constitution is ready to be submitted to the board of the organization. This association is expected to help remedy many of the difficulties which have existed in the shipping of Jennings county animals in the past.

DUROC MEN OF PUTNAM COUNTY START ASSOCIATION

About 46 breeders of pure-bred hogs in Putnam county recently met in Greencastle to organize a registered swine breeders' association. Much enthusiasm was displayed at the meeting and a committee was appointed to draw up a proposed constitution and by-law. The constitution will be adopted and the officers elected at the next meeting which is to be held in the near future, according to a report of the county agent.

RIVER BOTTOM CORN DAMAGED BY WATER

Some of the river bottom land in Spencer county has been under water three times this fall badly damaging corn which is by far the most important crop there. That which was not washed away has been sold to a feed company which is drying it with the intention of converting it into palatable feedstuffs.

CLOVER CAMPAIGN ON IN LAKE COUNTY

An energetic campaign to increase the acreage of clover in Lake County is being waged by the farm bureau and county agent. A leader for the drive has been named in every township and an organized drive is being made in every community to increase the growing of leguminous crops.

FROZEN POTATOES GOOD FOR FOOD IF PROPERLY HANDLED

The railroads are indispensable to our whole economic life, and railway securities are at the very heart of most investment in large and small, public and private, by individuals and by institutions.
WOODROW WILSON

THE war could not have been won without railroads. Transport—by rail and sea—is an indispensable arm of national defence.

Carrying capacity, from the wheat fields and the mines and the steel mills to the front lines in France, was the measure of our power in war.

And it is the measure of our power in peace.

Industrial expansion—increasing national prosperity—greater world trade—are vitally dependent on railroad growth.

The limit to the productive power of this country is the limit set by railroad capacity to haul the products of our industry.

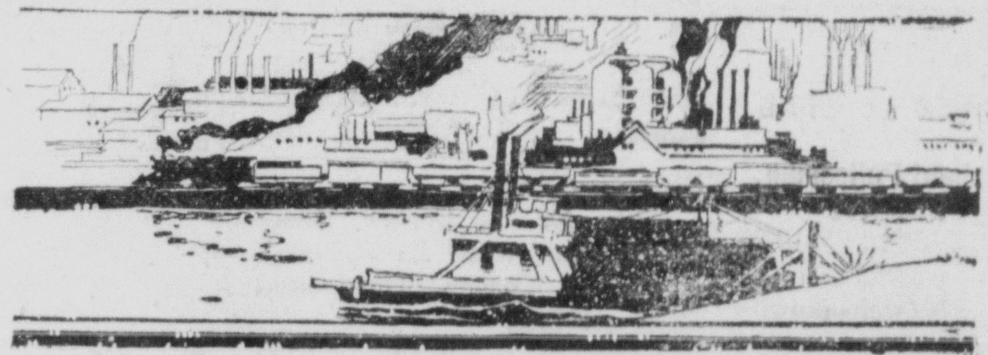

The amount of freight carried on American rails doubled from 1897 to 1905—since that year it has doubled again.

It will double still again.

To haul this rapidly growing traffic the country must have more railroads—more cars and engines—more tracks and terminals.

Sound national legislation, broad-visioned public regulation will encourage the expansion of railroads, without which the nation cannot grow.

lieved, but should be kept in the frozen condition until they are ready to be used and then peeled and cooked immediately. According to Prof. C. T. Gregory, of Purdue University, such potatoes will taste exactly the same as the unfrozen ones. The same thing is true of any vegetables that are cooked and not eaten raw.

Potatoes do not freeze at the same temperature that water freezes. At 27 to 29 degrees, a potato will not freeze for at least 24 hours, but spuds exposed to this temperature will show the internal signs of frosting after being kept in a warm place for a few hours. Frozen potatoes do not usually turn sweet. This condition only occurs when they have kept a long time at a temperature near the danger point. If such potatoes are kept at a higher temperature for some time the sweet taste will disappear.

Potatoes that have been frozen become soft and watery when thawed out but, spuds that have been only frosted usually do not show any signs of injury until they are cut open. Such potatoes will have dark blotches in the flesh or dark streaks which may assume a netted appearance extending all through the tuber. Sometimes a short exposure to a severe cold will cause the death of shallow areas just under the skin. Such injury as this often occurs during shipping.

Willard service does cost more, so does a Willard Battery. But isn't it true that if you hire a real engineer, or architect, or contractor, or carpenter, or mechanic, or doctor, or lawyer, that it saves in the long run?

We're in business to do the job right the first time—and that costs more than to fix it so it has to be done over again soon after.

When we sell a Willard Battery with Threaded Rubber Insulation we charge more for it, but it doesn't come back for re-insulation with a big bill to you. It stays on the job till it has delivered all the service you bought—and generally a lot more than you'd believe possible.

FOUND 119 DOORS OPEN DURING YEAR OF 1919

Peter Sensback, Merchant Policeman, Keeps Record of Business Houses Found Open.

Peter Sensback, well-known merchant policeman, keeps a yearly record of the work done for the business men in the downtown district and according to his annual report he found 119 doors open or unlocked last year. It is almost a nightly occurrence for him to find a bunch of keys left in the door of some business house or one of the entrances unlocked or open. When he finds a door open he generally enters, leaves a note on the cash register so that the merchant cannot doubt his carelessness and think that the merchant policeman might have been mistaken. Part of Mr. Sensback's salary comes from the amounts paid to him by the merchants and all who employ his service are well pleased with the manner in which he guards their place of business at night.

Modern Shorthand Had Birth in 1857.

Modern shorthand had its birth in the publication of Dr. Timothy Bright's "characterie" in 1857, the first English work on shorthand. Various systems of shorthand were published from that time on, all based on the a b c method, and some of them became quite popular, but with the publication of Isaac Pitman's "phonography," based on sound, all the others fell into disuse. Pitman had a number of predecessors whose systems, like his own, were strictly phonetic. These systems never gained any footing, while his immediately became popular, and has since been used by a large majority of shorthand writers of English.

SOCIAL EVENTS

BOYS OFFER APOLOGY.

The facts relative to the source of the article concerning a party said to have been given by Thomas Whitson, Jr., Thursday night, when in reality he did not entertain, came to light Saturday night when Glenn Sutton, Louis Schaefer and Lloyd Schaefer made an open, frank statement to The Republican that they were responsible for the article. The boys said they intended the society item as a practical joke, and it is to their credit that they appeared promptly to make amends when they realized that the myth had not been taken in the way they intended. The action of the boys in coming in this way to apologize to everyone concerned for their thoughtlessness shows them to be honest and manly and ready to rectify their mistakes. The whole affair again proves that a newspaper is not a public playground and that if jokes are to be perpetrated means of circulation other than the public press should be employed.

woman living apart from his wife or husband is also classed as a single person.

If he was married and living with his wife on December 31, a return is required if his net income for 1919 was $2,000 or over. In his net income he must include that of his wife and minor children, if any.

If a tax is due on his income, he must make payment with his return. This payment may be made in whole or in part of the tax due. At least one quarter of the tax must accompany the return.

The filing and paying must be done before midnight of March 15, or he is classed as a delinquent and is subject to severe penalties.

Two forms will be distributed for personal returns. Form 1040A is intended for use by a person whose net income does not exceed $5,000. A larger form, 1040, is intended for each person having a net income in excess of $5,000. Both of these forms are now obtainable at Internal Revenue offices and at some banks and Post Offices.

It is urged by the internal revenue bureau that taxpayers obtain their blanks as soon as possible. Failure to have a blank form at hand for an eleventh-hour return will not relieve a person of penalty for failure to comply with the law.

Each form contains instructions for preparing and filing the return, and these should be carefully read and strictly observed.

There is also provided a "work sheet" which should be used for making the original computations, and which should be retained and preserved by the taxpayer.

Any person who is in doubt on points affecting his particular case, should bring such matters to the attention of the nearest deputy collector or revenue agent, who will render every necessary aid without charge.

When the return is completed, it should be properly executed and immediately filed. Any internal revenue officer will administer the necessary oath without charge.

It is pointed out that accuracy in compiling the return is absolutely necessary. Mere guesses and esti-

Her Dignified Neighbor.

My neighbor has a dignified husband. My neighbor is not at all dignified, and we have fallen into the habit of doing things that are not a bit dignified and that often verge on the ridiculous when we get "by ourselves." I ran down to show her a new hat at an hour when I knew her husband would be out, and after tapping on the door stood waiting for her to open it, with my hat carefully adjusted on my head, my eyes crossed and my tongue out. Her husband opened the door.—Exchange.

JELICOE IN WASHINGTON

Viscount Jellicoe, admiral of the British fleet, who has just been visiting Washington, is shown here in company with Rear Admiral Niblack, U. S. N.

Every Day a New Year.

I heard the pastor preach a New Year sermon Sunday—a strong and fine sermon, courageous and full of pep. It bespoke the duty of every man to hang on to the plow handles and not quit. It was a perfectly true and sensible sermon and would have been just as true and sensible if delivered on the Fourth of July or the twelfth of September or any other day as on New Year's day. New Year's resolutions are fine; but the trouble with most of them is that they are made for a full year and not for a full hour, and that the present hour. What we need to do is resolve to meet each hour's, each day's, each week's duties with high courage, with serene faith; with no fear of consequences, if only we are doing what we feel to be right. If we take care of the next hour the next day will be cared for, and if the day is cared for as it comes the new year is sure to have no problems collectively that the day has not intimated and the hour itself may not help to solve.—A. G. Staples in Lewiston Journal.

Daddy Didn't Fight in Medal War.

Little daughter was certainly glad to have her father home after he had been to France for two years, working all the way from eight to twenty-four hours in a hospital rendering valuable aid to the injured while hearing the hum of German "air cooties" high overhead.

Daddy noticed daughter giving him the once over several times. Finally she seemed to have resolved the thing in her own mind. She was worried because daddy did not have any medals pinned to his coat. "Daddy," she lisped, "why didn't you fight in a war where they had medals?"

Charles Schneck, who is attending business college, in Indianapolis, spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. Sophia Schneck, west of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Gabbert and son were in this city this morning enroute to their home in Peoria, Ill., after a visit in Vallonia with Chas. Freeman.

CHANGING PRICES CAUSE
FARMERS TO HOLD HOGS

Car Shortage Situation is Acute
 Department of Agricultural Agent Says.

Indiana farmers are not pushing their hogs for marketing because of the fluctuating markets, according to the semi-monthly report of George Bryant, field agent of the department of agriculture, co-operating with the Indiana crop reporting service.

The report follows:

"Weather has been somewhat unfavorable for all farm work, however, many farmers have been busily applying fertilizers, cutting wood and making small repairs to machinery and buildings.

"Wheat condition is somewhat better than on Dec. 1, although there has not been seriously damaged by freezing weather. At this time there is a good snow covering in most of the territory and but little is no ing said about the fly, notwithstanding all the early sown wheat was more or less damaged by it.

"There is still some corn to be asked. Farmers do not seem too anxious to sell and prices are slowly moving upward. The ear shortage again quite serious. Considerably more corn than usual was put into this year.

"All Indiana tobacco markets are doing a good business and the crop bringing good prices for grades. The average price is about cents.

"Many farmers are not pushing their hogs as much as usual at this time because of the fluctuating market. Quite a number of men who have been in the game for years have sold out and new men have taken their places. The ear situation is te in some places.

"Generally all live stock is in a healthy condition."

The MAN NOBODY KNEW BY HOLWORTHY HALL.

COPYRIGHT BY HOLWORTHY HALL

The young man's lips parted in grave good humor; Harmon was spell-bound at the effect.

"I'll try not to keep you waiting. This speed of yours rather entices me. Besides, if my face is my fortune, I'd better find it out as soon as possible. This organization of yours is in New York city, isn't it?"

"My headquarters are, but I'd want you to work outside. I've got one special town in mind—up the state. That's where this list is. It's always been one of our hardest markets, and it's got money to burn. Can't swing it, somehow—they don't respond to any ordinary selling talk; they're too hide-bound conservative. You know the kind. Government-bond crowd. And for a year or so they've been making war profits till you can't see 'em for dust. Manufacturing town. And I'd like mighty well to ship you up there for a month or two; give you time enough to get your bearings, and turn you loose. You ought to do great work in a place like that. They need a chap like you—confound it!" He halted abruptly and shook his head in great bewilderment. "I can't make it out at all! You've got the appearance of a . . . well, a sort of a strait-laced youngster, if you know what I mean, and yet the way you say things, I—"

The young man gestured blandly. "And the town you have in mind?"

"It's Syracuse, New York."

"Syracuse?" The young man's chin was squared by a ruler, and noticeably thrust forward.

"Yes; know anybody there?"

Hilliard laughed unpleasantly and resumed his former attitude.

"Why, it so happens," he said, biting the words off sharply, "that I was born and brought up in Syracuse, and if there's any one place in the world I care less about than any other place that's the one . . . I'm sorry, but I'm afraid we're at cross purposes from here on."

Harmon showed his vexation. "What's the matter? Haven't you kept on good terms with your old friends?"

"No."

Harmon frowned.

"Well, is it so bad you couldn't do any business there? How do they remember you?"

intended to go to Syracuse again for pleasure, but if there's enough compensation to pay for the risk I'm not afraid to try it on . . . business." His accent sent cold chills coursing down Harmon's spine. "In fact now that I think of it, it ought to be rather amusing!"

The broker was striving to pull himself together.

"But why on earth didn't you have 'em use your own picture for a copy and I aren't going to let 'em."

"Go ahead," said Harmon, satisfied. "Do they know you went to France?"

"They don't know anything. I left between two days. I've never written anybody so much as a line to tell where I was, or what I was doing. I went over on a tramp. A French lieutenant got me into the army, and I didn't give a damn whether I got killed or not—and then I got this."

His hand was on his cheek, where a long scar crossed it. "And for over a year I've been hoping that somehow, some time, I could get back at a few of those men . . . principally Cullen and Durant and McEachern. Get back hard—you understand! Perhaps this suggestion of yours will give me the opening. Perhaps it will. That's what I'm wondering. I'm thinking it over. That's all."

Harmon controlled himself; his voice, when it came, was low and seductive.

"Well," he said, "could you get back any harder at people who haven't treated you right than by going back up there and making good? By putting something over on 'em—something big, you understand—and making those fellows look cheap? That's better than using a club on 'em, isn't it? Coals of fire, man, coals of fire! Show 'em what you can do—and take your satisfaction in that. Don't fight your enemies—you don't have to! Make a profit out of 'em! And then . . . oh well, I don't care what you do after that—come out in the open and give 'em the haka or not, just as you like. Could anything be a neater little comeback than that? More sort of Biblical and thorough? Poetic justice? Could it?"

Hilliard was still alert and rigid. "There's a good selling argument? And something good to sell?"

"As straight as a shoestring, and as sure as you're a foot high. And if you can't do business on this basis, you couldn't sell gold eagles for a dollar apiece! That's flat!"

"So I could go back—and honestly make good? All the way? Prove what I can do? And not have any backfire in it?"

"And have a chance," said Harmon, nodding, "to put yourself in right again. That's what my whole idea was. If you're going to cash in on your hard luck, boy, you've got to speak up. That's my policy. Cash in on this thing the doctors did for you! Let's play it together, son. If it's a sort of whitewashing you want, I'll help you. I don't care a continental what you did to get in wrong in Syracuse—it's success that counts. Nothing else but success. Is it a bargain?"

Hilliard shut his teeth tight; reflected; yielded abruptly.

"It's a bargain," he said. "I'm with you!"

"Good! Now—"

"One moment! Let's be frank with each other. Don't get any impression that I've done anything that's—"

"Mr. Hilliard, you don't have to talk like that to me! I've had you sized up from the start, haven't I?"

"Yes, but I wanted you to know—"

"But I do know, son! Wild out, sort of. Am I right, or am I wrong? That's why I'm banking on you. People turned up their noses, maybe. Said things. Gossip. I know that sort of business. And you're sore—naturally. Well, this'll pontifice everybody, including yourself. Go on back to your old friends. You're a new man; they won't know you. Make 'em new friends—and there you are. Oh, here's another suggestion. What would you say to no salary at all, twenty per cent commission, and no fault to your expense account? But you pay back half of your expenses out of your earned commissions. On—say, a three months' tryout. How does that strike you?"

"It . . . why, I don't see what you're driving at."

"Because," said Harmon, "you're worth more than I thought you were. How do I know? I've watched your eyes, son! You're going into Syracuse with the finest plan, the finest front and the finest opportunity I've ever dreamed of in all my life! And besides that, you've got a spur that even I couldn't give you. . . . How are you fixed for money?"

"I'm not fixed at all. I'm broke."

Harmon fished for his bill-book, and folded two notes into a small compass.

"Here! Bind the bargain. Don't worry—it's an advance. I know who I can trust—that's my longest suit, son. Give me a receipt, if you like. Better not speak to me again until we land. Never know who's aboard that might see you later. Come to my office at ten o'clock the morning after we're docked. And—" He laughed in

"I had to get used to this one myself. Something went wrong with my vocal chords, and the antrum on both sides was hurt; it seemed to have an effect like changing a sounding-board."

"So! And you used to be fatter in the face, didn't you? How about your general size, and so on?"

"I've taken on twenty-five pounds; my face is a lot thinner, but there's a reason. It hasn't grown on me; it was manufactured. Incidentally, while I think of it my stride's shortened six inches. That's another identification gone. Buller in my knee. I don't exactly limp, but—"

Harmon was beaming now, and flushed with excitement.

"That's great. Oh! that's wonderful! Wonderful! Nobody'll know you from Adam! Thunder and lightning, what a chance—what a chance! Hold on—how well do you know the big men in Syracuse? Well enough to know what their weak points are? Well enough to know how to approach 'em? Know Cullen? Know the Durants? Know Embree and McEachern and Cooke? Know—"

"At one time," said Hilliard, with sudden tragedy in his eyes, "all those people you've just named were about the closest friends I had in the world."

"Well, if you've got nerve enough to try to pass yourself off as a stranger, why—"

"Just a moment!" The young man's gesture, although calm, was nevertheless commanding. "Now listen! I lived in Syracuse twenty-six years! If I ever had any friends there I've lost 'em now, I—"

"Whose fault was it?"

"Whose fault? Don't make me laugh! The point is that my friends intended to go to Syracuse again for pleasure, but if there's enough compensation to pay for the risk I'm not afraid to try it on . . . business." His accent sent cold chills coursing down Harmon's spine. "In fact now that I think of it, it ought to be rather amusing!"

More sort of Biblical and thorough? Poetic justice? Could it?"

Hilliard was still alert and rigid. "There's a good selling argument? And something good to sell?"

"As straight as a shoestring, and as sure as you're a foot high. And if you can't do business on this basis, you couldn't sell gold eagles for a dollar apiece! That's flat!"

"So I could go back—and honestly make good? All the way? Prove what I can do? And not have any backfire in it?"

"And have a chance," said Harmon, nodding, "to put yourself in right again. That's what my whole idea was. If you're going to cash in on your hard luck, boy, you've got to speak up. That's my policy. Cash in on this thing the doctors did for you! Let's play it together, son. If it's a sort of whitewashing you want, I'll help you. I don't care a continental what you did to get in wrong in Syracuse—it's success that counts. Nothing else but success. Is it a bargain?"

Hilliard shut his teeth tight; reflected; yielded abruptly.

"It's a bargain," he said. "I'm with you!"

"Good! Now—"

"One moment! Let's be frank with each other. Don't get any impression that I've done anything that's—"

"Mr. Hilliard, you don't have to talk like that to me! I've had you sized up from the start, haven't I?"

"Yes, but I wanted you to know—"

"But I do know, son! Wild out, sort of. Am I right, or am I wrong? That's why I'm banking on you. People turned up their noses, maybe. Said things. Gossip. I know that sort of business. And you're sore—naturally. Well, this'll pontifice everybody, including yourself. Go on back to your old friends. You're a new man; they won't know you. Make 'em new friends—and there you are. Oh, here's another suggestion. What would you say to no salary at all, twenty per cent commission, and no fault to your expense account? But you pay back half of your expenses out of your earned commissions. On—say, a three months' tryout. How does that strike you?"

"It . . . why, I don't see what you're driving at."

"Because," said Harmon, "you're worth more than I thought you were. How do I know? I've watched your eyes, son! You're going into Syracuse with the finest plan, the finest front and the finest opportunity I've ever dreamed of in all my life! And besides that, you've got a spur that even I couldn't give you. . . . How are you fixed for money?"

"I'm not fixed at all. I'm broke."

Harmon fished for his bill-book, and folded two notes into a small compass.

"Here! Bind the bargain. Don't worry—it's an advance. I know who I can trust—that's my longest suit, son. Give me a receipt, if you like. Better not speak to me again until we land. Never know who's aboard that might see you later. Come to my office at ten o'clock the morning after we're docked. And—" He laughed in

"I had to get used to this one myself. Something went wrong with my vocal chords, and the antrum on both sides was hurt; it seemed to have an effect like changing a sounding-board."

"So! And you used to be fatter in the face, didn't you? How about your general size, and so on?"

"I've taken on twenty-five pounds; my face is a lot thinner, but there's a reason. It hasn't grown on me; it was manufactured. Incidentally, while I think of it my stride's shortened six inches. That's another identification gone. Buller in my knee. I don't exactly limp, but—"

Harmon was beaming now, and flushed with excitement.

"That's great. Oh! that's wonderful! Wonderful! Nobody'll know you from Adam! Thunder and lightning, what a chance—what a chance! Hold on—how well do you know the big men in Syracuse? Well enough to know what their weak points are? Well enough to know how to approach 'em? Know Cullen? Know the Durants? Know Embree and McEachern and Cooke? Know—"

"At one time," said Hilliard, with sudden tragedy in his eyes, "all those people you've just named were about the closest friends I had in the world."

"Well, if you've got nerve enough to try to pass yourself off as a stranger, why—"

"Just a moment!" The young man's gesture, although calm, was nevertheless commanding. "Now listen! I lived in Syracuse twenty-six years! If I ever had any friends there I've lost 'em now, I—"

"Whose fault was it?"

"Whose fault? Don't make me laugh! The point is that my friends intended to go to Syracuse again for pleasure, but if there's enough compensation to pay for the risk I'm not afraid to try it on . . . business." His accent sent cold chills coursing down Harmon's spine. "In fact now that I think of it, it ought to be rather amusing!"

The broker was striving to pull himself together.

"But why on earth didn't you have 'em use your own picture for a copy

and I aren't going to let 'em."

"Go ahead," said Harmon, satisfied. "Do they know you went to France?"

"They don't know anything. I left between two days. I've never written anybody so much as a line to tell where I was, or what I was doing. I went over on a tramp. A French lieutenant got me into the army, and I didn't give a damn whether I got killed or not—and then I got this."

His hand was on his cheek, where a long scar crossed it. "And for over a year I've been hoping that somehow, some time, I could get back at a few of those men . . . principally Cullen and Durant and McEachern. Get back hard—you understand! Perhaps this suggestion of yours will give me the opening. Perhaps it will. That's what I'm wondering. I'm thinking it over. That's all."

Harmon controlled himself; his voice, when it came, was low and seductive.

"Well," he said, "could you get back any harder at people who haven't treated you right than by going back up there and making good? By putting something over on 'em—something big, you understand—and making those fellows look cheap? That's better than using a club on 'em, isn't it? Coals of fire, man, coals of fire! Show 'em what you can do—and take your satisfaction in that. Don't fight your enemies—you don't have to! Make a profit out of 'em! And then . . . oh well, I don't care what you do after that—come out in the open and give 'em the haka or not, just as you like. Could anything be a neater little comeback than that? More sort of Biblical and thorough? Poetic justice? Could it?"

Hilliard was still alert and rigid. "There's a good selling argument? And something good to sell?"

"As straight as a shoestring, and as sure as you're a foot high. And if you can't do business on this basis, you couldn't sell gold eagles for a dollar apiece! That's flat!"

"So I could go back—and honestly make good? All the way? Prove what I can do? And not have any backfire in it?"

Builds Strong Bodies

Here's a food you can serve every day. The family will never tire of it.

Quickmush is rich in food values, very easily digested.

Try these Delicious Dishes for Breakfast, Lunch or Dinner

For rich creamy cereal, stir one cup of Quickmush into five cups of cold water, salted to taste. Boil ten minutes and serve piping hot with cream and sugar.

One cupful of Quickmush makes enough cereal for five people.

For Fried Quickmush, put leftover cereal in a mold. When cold, slice and fry to a crisp brown. Serve with butter and syrup.

These are typical of the many economical "fluffy-basty" dishes that can be prepared with Quickmush.

patent relief. "You know, son," he said, "I'm a pretty wise old bird, and there's not much that fools me, but . . . right up to the last second, I wasn't quite sure whether you'd take that job or not. If the surgeon that mended you could only have doctored your eyes, son—if he could only have doctored your eyes! Whew!" He stared again at Hilliard, and nodded soberly. "Wonderful—perfectly wonderful," he said, fascinated. "When you smile at me like that, I sort of feel as though I ought to get up and take off my hat and apologize to you, and I'm hanged if I know what for. . . . Perhaps they overdid it a trifle . . . copied that picture too well . . . why don't you see if you can't grow a mustache . . ."

COLUMBUS H. S. QUINTET DEFEATS LOCAL TEAM 18-13

Seymour Team Played Good Game—
Local Freshman Five Loses, 12-8.

Although the Seymour high school basket ball team was defeated Saturday night for the second time this season by the Columbus high school team, 18-13, the players are well pleased with the improvement shown over the previous encounter at which time the locals were defeated on their home floor 22-11. As a curtain raiser the Freshmen team of both cities met, Columbus winning by four points, 12-8. The local freshmen won the curtain raiser between the two teams played here.

Columbus started the game with a five point lead before the first and only field goal was scored for the locals the first half. Both teams played an excellent defensive game as was shown by the low score, the Bartholomew county lads having small edge over the purple and white. The first half ended, 9-3, Columbus leading.

The first fifteen minutes of the second half very much resembled the previous period, Columbus gradually increasing the lead with seven to two points by the locals. Steinwedel relieved Fenton for the last fifteen minutes and Niehaus asked relief for the remaining five. At this point Banta entered the game and the Seymour quintet found their stride.

PASSING OF SENTENCE ON NEW IS POSTPONED

Defense Seeks New Trial Charging Irregularities by Jury in Reaching Verdict.

By United Press.
Los Angeles, January 19—Passing of sentence on Harry S. New, alleged son of United States Senator New of Indiana, was postponed today until Friday morning until 10 o'clock.
Filing of a motion for a new trial caused the postponement. The motion for the new trial alleged evidence outside the court record was considered by the jury; that the verdict was reached by irregular methods and by lot and that it was not in accordance with any evidence presented at the trial. Stress is laid on the note sent by the jury to Judge Craig after the jury reported, asking that New be sent to an asylum for observation before going to the penitentiary.

SOVIET ARK REACHES THE FINNISH-RUSSIAN BORDER

By United Press.
Hango, Finland, January 19—The two hundred forty-nine radicals deported from the United States reached Viborg, the last station before they cross the Russian border, today. They left Hango on a special train guarded by fifty Finnish troops and American immigration authorities yesterday. The Reds will be escorted to the Finnish-Russian border. Finnish authorities have assured the Americans there will be cessation of hostilities between their forces and the soviet troops while the radicals are crossing the bridge into Russia.
The Russian soviet government, it was said, has assured the American and Finnish authorities its troops will not molest the reds as they enter Russia.
The party was expected to cross the Finnish-Russian border some time Monday. Their ultimate destination is Petrograd.
